ABOUT US

The Let Us Dream Conference provides a platform to share, learn, and celebrate people and social service groups dedicated to uplift the society. Since its inception in 2017 at Louisiana Tech University, the annual conferences have provided opportunities to engage in active conversations grounded in community-improvement-based research, experience, and best practices. The conferences are organized by groups of volunteers and hosted in institutions across the world.

The Conference is a forum for initiating a spectrum of service possibilities and intervention models to promote and support engagement in volunteerism across generations. It was established to effectively network and collaborate with volunteers, philanthropists, and community organizations, thereby empowering them in diverse community-improvement programs.

It opens opportunities for students, researchers, along with practitioners to share from their knowledge and experiences. This synergizes the effort and impact towards community improvement. Volunteers from local communities participating in the conference can engage in fruitful dialogues with visionaries to strengthen their existing initiatives.

THEME

EMPOWERED COMMUNITIES:

STRENGTHENING CONNECTIONS FOR A SUSTAINABLE FUTURE

The LUD Conferences carry a vision of Empowered Communities actualised by people coming together to share transformative stories of social intervention. These individuals have a shared commitment of establishing a sustainable community life and network of resources. Building a sustainable future means adopting responsible practices encompassing social, educational, health, environmental, and economic development. The process of creating a sustainable future entails transitioning from aspirations to actions. This iterative process involves establishing connections, collaborating and forming partnerships with various stakeholders, engaging and empowering one another, and fostering cooperation. Throughout this journey, we gain inspiration by sharing best practices, working together, and implementing initiatives that contribute to the overarching goal of empowering communities.

The ultimate objective is to empower all sectors of society, which necessitates involving a broad ecosystem comprising NGOs, educational institutions, corporations, volunteers, and civil societies. Each entity plays a crucial role in this transformative process. The process of creating a sustainable future entails transitioning from aspirations to actions. The Let Us Dream Conference aims to share authentic stories, inspire one another, foster collaboration, and discover ways to improve lives and our world. This transcends our lifestyles and requires us to establish and strengthen connections while working collectively to create a better world for ourselves and future generations. Embracing a sustainable future involves modifying our approach and actively engaging in broader issues that contribute to a more desirable world.

Throughout this journey, we gain inspiration by sharing best practices, working together, and implementing initiatives that contribute to the overarching goal of empowering communities. It involves us creating and strengthening associations and working together to create a better world for ourselves and future generations. Creating a sustainable future involves changing the way we live. It also requires our participation and involvement in more significant issues that will help the world to be a better place.

TESTIMONIALS

DR. SUZANNE MYNETTE MAYO

FCS Lecture, Grambling State University

The Let Us Dream Conference has been one of the most inspiring experiences for the students I teach at Grambling State University (GSU) and for me since 2017. My most memorable single moment was in 2020, when the Student Panel was highlighted with student's comments and reflections on giving back to their communities and others in need. This panel awakened my inner core of what teaching and learning is all about and I continue to keep this spark today and into the future with this conference. For the many persons who are Unsung Heroes, I salute Fr. Lijo and The Let Us Dream Conference to master in featuring everyday great ones to give in the areas of health, education and social justice for all. I remain a LUD advocate and look forward to 2023 in India.

DR. PHINU MARY JOSE

Assistant Professor, Christ University

The LUD Conference 2020 held completely online from 20 November to 22 November was indeed a life-changing experience for me. LUD opened the screens into the lives of people who joined us from South Africa to Australia to New York to Zurich to Kerala and Bangalore, breaking barriers and building bridges across the boundaries defined by geography with only one philosophy - to make this world a better place! LUD Triennial Conference 2020 became the beacon of hope for all of us involved, so much so that we continued with the same spirit in organizing the Annual Conference in 2021 and Local Conference in 2022 with the same zeal and enthusiasm. The success of these three years is not defined by the 40,000+ registrations or views online but by the leaders nurtured through volunteerism and lives touched that make ordinary days seem extraordinarily blessed

DEBBIE COLLETT-O'BRIEN

Let Us Dream Liason - Binghamton University

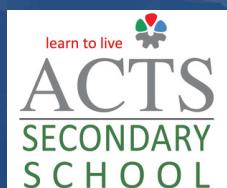

In my role, I have worked with and helped coordinate the Let Us Dream Conference at Binghamton University since 2019 and have been amazed by the impact which this organisation has had across the globe. The Let Us Dream Conferences has allowed practitioners, learners and community members come together, hone their skills in a variety of disciplines, and invigorate one another to bring out and strengthen sentiments of community, empathy and care which is already ingrained in the community itself. Let Us Dream has endless opportunities for involvement and working with Dean Laura Bronstein, Michael Kaufmann, Tracy Lyman and Jeff Smith has been such an amazing experience to see the wonderful work of those in the Binghamton community get recognized on a national and global level.
