At The Edge Of The Cliff

He walks to the cliff
As his mind is in a drift
Lonely and stiff
In hope of a clear swift

He looks at the sky
And takes a deep sigh
Sees a glowing star fly
Like a child, with dreams to try

He thinks his childhood day
When he was bold and spry
He remembers his father's say
That, life is like this sky

Sometimes it's the glowing scar
Sometimes the silent star
Both shines like diamond in the dark
And we learn to value their spark
